Four Girls of Spirit The little village of Bartlett, twelve miles from Memphis, has not yet ceased discussing a sensasional scene that occurred there on HILBURN'S POSITIVE CURE Thursday evening, in which four of the leading village belies, with long switches in their hands, administered to a well-known young man alsevere chastisement for certain reports said to have emanated from him

The young man in the case is Robert Yates, who lives at Bartlett, and until a short time ago was employed by the Tenneseee Paper Company in Memphis. His parents are of the highest respectability, and he has stood high both at Bartiett and Memphis. The young ladies who covered them elves with g'ory are Misses Hanson (daughter of Judge Hanson, formerly of She by county). Lill e Smith, Josie Smith, and Mattie King. They are pretty and bright.

It had come to the ears of the ladics that young Yates had made a statement to the effect that he could successfully assail the virtue of any lady in Bartlett, with the excepported to have been made in the presence of some boys, who conveyed it to the ladies. The four girls concerned determined to take the matter of punishment into their own hands without consultation with their male relatives, and they laid a plan to encompass the desired end Yates went to Memohis on Thursday, and was due to return to Bartlett in the evening about five o'clock. The gir's were waiting for him, when he alighted from the train, each armed with a stout switch. He had not pro-ceeded far from the depot when they surrounded him. One seized him, while the others telabored him with their switches He tore away from his captors, but was seized again before he had gone but a few steps by a boy who beld him until the girls had given him a terrible thrashing. They grasped their switches by the slender end and laid the heavy end on his face, arms, and back until he cried for mercy. The girls were there for punitive, not cautionary pur-poses, and they did not desist until they had accomplished their object. The scene was witnessed by half the population of Bartlett.—Memphis Appeal-Avalanche.

SAVED BY A WATCH CHARM.-Col. A. D.

Gwynne, of Memphis, carries a charm that has a history closely interwoven with his owe, for it is a relic of the battle of Shiloh, and brings to mind a time when the gallant Colonel might have yielded up his life in the cause of his country but for the same but-ton. It was an old brass button of the Fed eral pattern, for at the time the battle of Spiloh was fought the Confederates did not possess a button peculiar to their own uniforme. Col.- Gwynne keeps it brightly burnished, and i' every indentation is as plain as on the day it was turned out of the factory. In the pride of its youth it was puffed out-that is, it was globular in form in the middle, but as it appears now the conceit has been taken out of it by the ball that struck it and flattened it. At the head of the Twenty-sixth Alabama Regiment of cavalry Col. Gwynne took a foremost part in the batt'e of Shilon, and it was in the thickest of the fight that, when leaning over in a charge, a ball tore through the front of his cop, grazed past his nose, and struck the first button on his coat, glancing thence to for some time he was laid up for repairs.

But he never forgot the button that saved his life, and ever since it has bung from his watch chain, slightly disfigured, but therefore the more honored .- Memphis Appeal-A BOY ALMOST SWALLOWED BY A PYTH on.-At Judan, a village six miles from Muka, a man and his son, aged from 10 to 12 years, were sleeping in their house, inside of a mosquito curtain. They were on the floor near the wall. In the middle of the night the father was awakened by his son calling out. The lamp was out, and the father passed his hand over his son, but found nothing amiss, so he turned over and went to sleep again, thinking the boy was out, saying that a crocodile was taking him. This time the father, thoroughly aroused, felt again, and found that a snake had closed his jaws on the boy's bead. He then pried open the reptile's mouth and released the head of his son, but the beast draw the whole of his body into the bouse and encircled the body of the father He was rescued by the neighbors, who were structed by the cries for help of the terr fied couple. The eneke when killed was found to be 15 feet long. The head and foretend of the boy are encircled with punctured wounds produced by the python's teeth. - Sarawak (Borneo) News.
